

Textbook Sources

In this guide, every video segment is cross-referenced by theme or event to this list of the most widely adopted texts in civics, government, U.S. history, economics, and world history. For instance, the first segment in the “Freedom” Act, which is about restrictions on climbers in Yosemite National Park, is cross-referenced to texts on environmental issues, the social costs of environmentalism, and governmental regulation.

Texts are identified by the last name of their principal author(s). Look for the:  (our textbook icon) which follows each segment.
